Complaints policy

It is the responsibility of each NHSBSA member of staff to provide good customer service.

If you are dissatisfied with the service you have received from us, the conduct of staff, or a decision we have made on a course of action, you can make a complaint.

The following are examples of complaints:

- claims of unfair treatment
- dissatisfaction about how we have dealt with a situation
- claims that a poor standard of service has been provided
- claims that staff have been unhelpful or rude

If you do raise a complaint, the NHSBSA will deal with your complaint as quickly, fairly and thoroughly as possible.

We always view complaints as an opportunity to learn how we can improve our services. Sometimes we can only explain ourselves and apologise. Where applicable, we will put things right and seek to ensure that the problem does not happen again.

Complaints procedure

To make sure that all complaints are handled efficiently, fairly and consistently, we have a complaints procedure in place.

The procedure involves a number of different stages you need to take to resolve your complaint. The stages are as follows:

1. informal complaint
2. formal complaint
3. appeal to the NHSBSA Chief Executive
4. Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman [and/or] the Department of Health and Social Care

1. Making an informal complaint

What to do

You should get in contact with us straight away and in any event not more than 90 calendar days after the incident you wish to complain about occurred.

You can get in contact with us in the following ways:

Via our webform www.nhsbsa.nhs.uk/contact-us indicating 'Complaint' in the subject line

Via telephone by calling the relevant service you wish to complain about.

Or in writing to:

Customer Resolutions Team
Bridge House
152 Pilgrim Street
Newcastle Upon Tyne
NE1 6SN

What happens next?

We aim to resolve informal complaints within 10 working days.

If it looks like the complaint will take longer than 10 working days to resolve, we will keep you updated on a regular and consistent basis.

2. Making a formal complaint (this is known as Stage 1)

What to do

If you are unhappy with the resolution provided at the informal stage and wish to make a formal complaint, you will need to contact us in one of the following ways:

Telephone call

If you make a formal complaint by telephone, we will acknowledge this in writing within three working days. This will include a summary of your complaint.

You will then have seven working days to send us any further comments or information you think is relevant to the complaint.

If we do not hear from you within seven working days we will consider the complaint summary set out in our acknowledgement to be accurate and we will progress to the investigation stage.

Letter or email

If you send us a formal complaint by letter or email, we will send you an acknowledgement in writing within three working days of the date we received your letter or email and we will progress to the investigation stage.

What happens next?

Investigation

An independent senior member of staff will investigate the complaint on behalf of the Head of Service who will then review the investigation findings.

Response

You will receive a full written response from the Head of Service within 25 working days of receipt of your complaint.

Resolution or escalation

If you are satisfied with our response to your complaint then no further action is required. If you are dissatisfied with our response to your formal complaint you have the right to make an appeal to the NHSBSA Chief Executive. This is referred to as a Stage 2 complaint. Details of who to contact to progress your case will be set out in the written response from the Head of Service.

3. Appeal to the NHSBSA Chief Executive (Stage 2)

If you remain dissatisfied after making a Stage 1 formal complaint and receiving our response, you can appeal the outcome to the NHSBSA Chief Executive.

What to do

You must raise your appeal to the Chief Executive in writing or verbally and within 90 calendar days of receiving our response to your Stage 1 complaint. Referrals to the NHSBSA Chief Executive after this time will not be considered.

When the NHSBSA receives a Stage 2 complaint, the Chief Executive will acknowledge receipt within three working days.

What happens next?

Investigation

The Chief Executive will allocate your appeal to an independent senior member of staff who will investigate whether your complaint was fully addressed in the correct manner and in compliance with our complaints procedure. This is to make sure that the complaint has been handled correctly and appropriately.

A Stage 2 review is unlikely to reinvestigate the whole complaint unless it is deemed necessary.

Response

The Chief Executive will send you a full written response within 15 working days from the date of receipt of your written request.

If your complaint requires more time to resolve, the timescale may be extended. If any extension to the timescale is required, the Chief Executive will notify you of the reason for the delay as soon as possible (this will be within the timescales outlined).

Resolution or escalation

The referral of your appeal to the NHSBSA's Chief Executive is the last stage of the complaints procedure that is handled by the NHSBSA.

If you are dissatisfied with the outcome of your appeal to the Chief Executive you may escalate your complaint to the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman, details are set out below. If you are an NHS Bursary, Social Work Bursary or Learning Support Fund student and you remain dissatisfied following the Chief Executive's review, you can escalate your complaint to the Department of Health and Social Care.

If your complaint relates to NHS Student Services you can escalate your complaint to the Department of Health and Social Care, details are set out in Part 5.

4. Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman

The Ombudsman's role is to investigate complaints where individuals feel they have been treated unfairly or have received poor service from public organisations such as the NHS. The Parliamentary Health Service Ombudsman will not investigate any complaint made about the NHSBSA unless it has been through our two-stage complaints process first.

Additional information

Our commitment to you

We deal with all complaints fairly and impartially.

The NHSBSA complaints procedure is underpinned by the following principles. It aims to be:

- easy to access and understand
- speedy, with time limits for action, keeping you informed at all stages of the process
- informative, so that feedback from complaints can be used to review our practices
- effective, ensuring all points raised are addressed positively and suitable solutions are provided
- regularly monitored
- fair to you and NHSBSA staff alike

If you behave unreasonably

In a very small number of cases people can pursue their complaints in a way that is unreasonable.

Where necessary, we will take action to protect the wellbeing of our staff and the integrity of our complaints procedure.

The NHSBSA will not tolerate deceitful, abusive, offensive, threatening or other forms of unacceptable behaviour.

Anyone who continues to display these types of behaviours may be put under certain restrictions by the NHSBSA during or after the handling of a complaint. These measures may include:

- telephone calls being restricted to specified days and limited times

- contact limited to one form only (for example, a maximum of one letter a week)
- contact being required to take place with one named member of staff only
- an agreement about future behaviour before the complaint is progressed
- contact being managed with the help of an independent advocate.

If someone continues to behave unreasonably, despite restrictions being in place, the NHSBSA may decide to terminate contact with them and discontinue any further investigation into their complaint. Only the NHSBSA Chief Executive can designate a complaint as unreasonable in line with this policy.
