1	Job specific questions	We've added the option to include new additional application questions. These are specific questions for medical, dental, nursing and driving roles. Employers can choose which questions they want to include for each role when creating a job listing. We plan to release more application questions for allied health profession and psychologist roles in the future. Currently answers to these questions will not save for applicants to use for future applications. This is something we are looking to develop.	Addresses the employer need to include additional application questions for medical, dental, nursing and driving roles.
2	Online scoring pagination	We've improved the page performance issues that were happening when large numbers of applications were being scored.	Addresses performance issues raised by users.
3	Additional salary information/HCAS	We've added a new optional text box for employers to add more details about the pay. This could be used to add details about High-Cost Area Supplements (HCAS) if appropriate.	Employers will be able to advise of any High-Cost Area Supplements that are in addition to the advertised salary.
4	Full-time equivalent	We've added a new field to capture the FTE equivalent for a job. This is a mandatory field with a range of 0.01 to 999.	Allows employers to keep an audit trail of how many people they are going out to recruit for and enable them to report on those numbers.
5	Download contract	We've added a 'download the contract' link at the contract stage. Employers can now download and keep a PDF version of the contract.	This functionality was already available but not clear to users that they could do it from the existing 'preview the contract' link.
